Dear Families,

This week in English students are still practicing finding the main idea along with 3 supporting details of nonfiction texts. Scholars have also been working on vocabulary, main idea, and reading comprehension during ELA time in centers. This week in Spanish: students talked and wrote about what they did over winter break using present tense verbs and changing them to past tense verbs. Students also read independently to find new vocabulary and used transition words in their writing. We wrapped our first addition and subtraction unit of the year this week with students determining if word problems required them to use addition or subtraction to solve. In units of inquiry scholars played a game in which they simulated the manufacturing economy and planned for market day. We also played a game in which students calculated expenses and made life decisions. Ask them more about this at home!
